

VIDE ASSISTANT REFEREE (VAR) PROTOCOL

1. Principles

The VAR protocol, as far as possible, conforms to the principles and philosophy of the Laws of the Game.

The use of video assistant referees (VARs) is only permitted where the match/competition organiser has fulfilled all the implementation requirements as set out in the VAR Handbook, and has received written permission from FIFA.

Principles

The use of VARs in football matches is based on a number of principles, all of which must apply in every match using VARs \(except for incorrectly awarded corner kicks – see point e. under ‘2. Reviewable

c. Red card (including a clearly incorrect second caution)

d. Mistaken identity (when the referee cautions or sends off the wrong player)

2. The referee must always make a decision, i.e. the referee is not permitted to give 'no decision' and then use the VAR to make the decision; a decision to allow play to continue after an alleged offence can be reviewed.

3. The original decision given by the referee will not be changed unless the video review clearly shows that the decision was a 'clear and obvious error'.

4. Only the referee can initiate a 'review'; the VAR (and other match officials) can only recommend a 'review' to the referee.

5. The final decision is always taken by the referee, either based on information from the VAR or after the referee has undertaken an 'on-field review' (OFR).

6. There is no time limit for the review process as accuracy is more important than speed.

7. The players and team officials must not surround the referee or attempt to influence if a decision is reviewed, the review process or the final decision.

10. If play has stopped and been restarted, the referee may not undertake a 'review' except for a case of mistaken identity or for a potential sending-off offence relating to violent conduct, spitting, biting or extremely offensive, insulting and/or abusive action(s).

11. The period of play before and after an incident that can be reviewed is determined by the Laws of the Game and VAR protocol.

12. As the VAR will automatically 'check' every situation/decision, there is no need for coaches or players to request a 'review'.

2. Reviewable decisions/incidents

The referee may receive assistance from the VAR only in relation to five categories of decisions/incidents. In all these situations, the VAR is only used after the referee has made a (first/original) decision (including allowing play to continue), or if a serious incident is missed/not seen by the match officials.

The referee`s original decision will not be changed unless there was a 'clear and obvious error' (this includes any decision made by the referee based on information from another match official e.g. offside).

serious foul play (or reckless challenge)

violent conduct, biting or spitting at another person

using offensive, insulting or abusive action(s)

clearly incorrect second caution

d. Mistaken identity (red or yellow card)

If the referee penalises an offence but has clearly misidentified the player who committed that offence, only the identity of the offender can be reviewed.

e. Clearly incorrectly awarded corner kick if the decision can be

Depending on the number of camera angles and other considerations, there may be more than one AVAR and one or more replay operators (ROs)

Only authorised persons are allowed to enter the VOR or communicate with the VAR/AVAR/RO during the match

The VAR has independent access to, and replay control of, TV broadcast footage

The VAR is connected to the communication system being used by the match officials and can hear everything they say; the VAR can only speak to the referee by pushing a button (to avoid the referee being distracted by conversations in the VOR)

If the VAR is busy with a 'check' or a 'review', the AVAR may speak to the referee especially if the game needs to be stopped or to ensure play does not restart

If the referee decides to view the replay footage, the VAR will select the best angle/replay speed; the referee can request other/additional angles/speeds

4. Procedures

Original decision

The referee and other match officials must always make an initial decision (including any disciplinary action) as if there was no VAR (except for a 'missed' incident)

clear run into/towards the opponents' penalty area

If an assistant referee delays a flag for an offence, the assistant referee must raise the flag if the attacking team scores a goal, is awarded a penalty kick, free kick, corner kick or throw-in, or retains possession of the ball after the initial attack has ended; in all other situations, the assistant referee should decide whether or not to raise the flag, depending on the requirements of the game

Check

The VAR automatically 'checks' the TV camera footage for every potential or actual goal, penalty or direct red card decision/incident, or a case of mistaken identity, using different camera angles and replay speeds

The VAR can 'check' the footage in normal speed and/or in slow motion but, in general, slow motion replays should only be used for facts, e.g. position of offence/player, point of contact for physical offences and handball, ball out of play (including goal/no goal); normal speed should be used for the 'intensity' of an offence or to decide if it was a handball offence

If the 'check' does not indicate a 'clear and obvious error' or 'serious missed incident', there is usually no need for the VAR to communicate with the referee – this is a 'silent check'; however, it sometimes helps the referee/assistant referee to manage the players/match if the VAR confirms that no 'clear and obvious error' or 'serious missed incident' occurred

Review

The referee can initiate a 'review' for a potential 'clear and obvious error' or 'serious missed incident' when:

- the VAR (or another match official) recommends a 'review'
- the referee suspects that something serious has been 'missed'

If play has already stopped, the referee delays the restart

If play has not already stopped, the referee stops play when the ball is next in a neutral zone/situation (usually when neither team is in an attacking move) and shows the 'TV signal'

The VAR describes to the referee what can be seen on the TV replay(s) and the referee then:

- shows the 'TV signal' (if not already shown) and goes to the referee review area to view replay footage – 'on-field review' (OFR) – before making a final decision. The other match officials will not review the footage unless, in exceptional circumstances, asked to do so by the referee or

- makes a final decision based on the referee's own perception and the information from the VAR, and, where appropriate, input from other match officials – 'VAR-only review'

At the end of both review processes, the referee must show the 'TV signal' immediately followed by the final decision

For subjective decisions, e.g. intensity of a foul challenge, interference at offside, handball considerations, an 'on-field review' (OFR) is appropriate

of offence/player, point of contact for physical offences and handball, ball out of play (including goal/no goal); normal speed should be used for the 'intensity' of an offence or to decide if it was a handball offence. For decisions/incidents relating to goals, penalty/no penalty and red cards for denying an obvious goal-scoring opportunity (DOGSO), it may be necessary to review the attacking phase of play which led directly to the decision/incident; this may include how the attacking team gained possession of the ball in open play.

The Laws of the Game do not allow restart decisions (corner kicks, throw-ins etc.) to be changed once play has restarted, so they cannot be reviewed.

If play has stopped and restarted, the referee may only undertake a 'review', and take the appropriate disciplinary sanction, for a case of mistaken identity or for a potential sending-off offence relating to violent conduct, spitting, biting or extremely offensive, insulting and/or abusive action(s).

The review process should be completed as efficiently as possible, but the accuracy of the final decision is more important than speed. For this reason, and because some situations are complex with several reviewable decisions/incidents, there is no maximum time limit for the review process.

Final decision

When the review process is completed, the referee must show the 'TV signal' and communicate the final decision; competitions may also

Players, substitutes and team officials must not attempt to influence or interfere with the review process, including when the final decision is communicated

During the review process, players should remain on the field of play; substitutes and team officials should remain off the field of play

A player/substitute/substituted player/team official who excessively shows the 'TV signal' or enters the RRA will be cautioned

A player/substitute/substituted player/team official who enters the VOR will be sent off

Match validity

In principle, a match is not invalidated because of:

malfunction(s) of the VAR technology (as for goal line technology (GLT)) wrong decision(s) involving the VAR (as the VAR is a match official) decision(s) not to review an incident

review(s) of a non-reviewable situation/decision

Incapacitated VAR, AVAR or replay operator

Law 6 – The Other Match Officials stipulates: 'Competition rules must state clearly who replaces a match official who is unable to start or continue and any associated changes.' In matches using VARs, this also applies to replay operators.

As special training and qualifications are needed to be a video match circumstances, both teams agree in writing that the match may be played/continue with only the VAR and replay operator

This does not apply where there is more than one AVAR/replay operator.*

FAQs

An attacking player (Team A) kicks the ball which then accidentally touches a hand/arm of their team-mate (Team A). The referee stops play, but wrongly decides that the handball offence was committed by a defending player (Team B), who is punished with a yellow card (YC) and a direct free kick to Team A. May the video assistant referee (VAR) inform the referee that the player from the non-offending team was cautioned?

An attacker challenges a defender, who falls to the ground in the middle of the field and pretends to have been fouled, despite there being no contact. The referee stops play, awards a free kick for the defender's team and shows a yellow card (YC) to the attacker, which is their second YC in the match and results in a red card (RC). May the video assistant referee (VAR) inform the referee about a 'clear and obvious error' so that the incident is reviewed?

A player who has already received a yellow card commits a reckless tackle, which would be their second caution in the match; however, the offence is not seen by the referee on the field. May the video assistant referee (VAR) inform the referee about a serious missed incident and

A player makes a challenge which might endanger the safety of the opponent. The video assistant referee recommends an on-field review for a potential sending-off (red card, RC) offence because this incident was not seen by the referee. May the referee, after undertaking the review, decide to caution (yellow card, YC) the offender?

The referee has awarded a penalty kick, however, the video assistant referee (VAR) recommends a 'review' because the foul was committed outside the penalty area. What is the appropriate procedure?

A defending team player has made their body bigger and touched the ball with their arm inside their own penalty area. The referee allows play to continue. The video assistant referee (VAR) communicates the incident to the referee. What is the correct procedure?

Is the referee permitted to give 'no decision' and then use the VAR to make a decision?

A goalkeeper committed an offence while a penalty kick was taken and then saved a kick. Is the use of VAR allowed in this situation?

The referee awards a penalty kick. The VAR review shows that an attacking player was guilty of simulation (pretended to be fouled). What is the referee's decision?

A player receives a caution (yellow card, YC) for simulation in the opponents' penalty area. The incident is then reviewed by the referee and the VAR review clearly shows that the player was fouled. What is the referee's decision?
